

STILL BEAUTIFUL

Everything that's good is bad again, the changing minds give me the bends,
I'm so sick of talking heads, The world is more than CNN
I hope you know what you're saying

Yeah, Forget all the sycophants, they've taken your innocence, and left,
And you were the one that bruised,
You're taking it on the chin,
The rock you were broke against is breaking into two
You're scarred, but still beautiful

Everything that's in is out again, I've changed my mind I've changed my skin,
Calling out behind the din, I hear the same words back again,
I don't believe a word that you're saying

Yeah, forget all the sycophants, they've taken your innocence, and left,
And you were the one that bruised,
You're taking it on the chin, So you better come out swinging, tonight
If you want to get out alive, Hold on to your common sense,
And see the rock you were broke against is breaking into two
You're scarred, but still beautiful

I want you I need you more and more
The more I see, the more I want you with me

Yeah, forget all the sycophants, they've taken your innocence, and left,
And you were the one that bruised,
You're wearing a thicker skin, but your courage is paper thin, let it go
You gotta step off that edge, To finally know yourself,
And see the rock you were broke against has broken into two
You're scarred, but still beautiful
